

morning Report from the Detained Fleet and Hospital'

The Hamburg liner Bohemia which arrived last night, reports eleven deaths on voyage and four persons sick. No more deaths from cholera are reported on the plague fleet in the lower or on the islands.

Ship Is Anchored with Other Plague Carriers Down the Bay.

TRANSIT, Sept. 16. — When the sun this morning dispelled the haze that hung a pall over the plague carriers in the harbor, a new addition to the fleet was noted. She was the Hamburg-American liner, Bohemia, whose coming the health authorities had been anxiously awaiting, fearing, like the Normandia, Hugs, Moravia and Scandia, she would prove a floating pestilence, with an evil record of deaths. The Bohemia came from the great city under cover of the darkness. So quietly she approached the harbor that not even operators at Pier Island, which she passed, out, at 5 p. m. yesterday, or at Sandy Hook, where she reached about 9 o'clock, knew of her arrival.

About 200 miles east of Sandy Hook the Bohemia was boarded by Pilot John Shook, of Pilot boat 21.

his private office at Upper Quarantine Jenkins passed sleepless hours until 1.30 morning, expecting every moment to see the suspected plague ship's arrival from Dr. Byron, who on Swinburne Island was keeping vigil as he had done for the India.

When Dr. Byron made his midnight report on the condition of affairs on the hospital ship he added: "I am on the alert for the germs."

At 6 o'clock this morning the operator at Indian Island wired Dr. Jenkins a private message that there was a new ship anchored off the cholera fleet in the lower bay and brought her was the Bohemia, although it was too busy to make her out clearly. At

While the Bohemia was still far outside of my hook the lookout on the Wagon's top called out and produced a small package. The pilot slowed up to inquire about it. Fred Hink, recently placed on the Southern, told me this was a box of newspapers to talk with those on board the ship. I gave you any choice on board?" shouted.

"No," was the bluff reply from Capt. Schroeder, who leaned over the rail and repeated the question. "What do you want?" "Any sickness since you left Hamburg?" "Yes, among the children."

"What was it?"

"Diphtheria."

"Were there any deaths?"

"Several, but they were all children who had the diphtheria, and none of them was more than six or six years old. The first death was that of a child about five or six days after death. None of the adult passengers was sick."

"What," Capt. Schroeder would again, re-ship was taken to the Health Officer to-day, giving names of victims and ill participants.

Report of the Health Officer stated that the captain and an evident crew member, the part of the ship's officers to conceal the fact that the plague was or had been on board, and the Health Officer would make a question of whether there were any persons sick on ship now.

Shipboard Near Other Stricken Ships.

The big ship continued slowly up the bay, finally dropped anchor inside the yellow zone, that is, in the area of the quarantine grounds to the old frigate New Hampshire, and the vessel did not stop there.

At the very close of this morning no official word had been received from the ship, but she had 182 steerage passengers.

BOHEMIA'S DEATH LIST.

Names of the Eleven Children Who Died During Her Voyage.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

ST. CINCINNATI, S. C., SEPTEMBER 16.—The Bohemia's death list is as follows:

JOHN DITKE, 25 years, died Sept. 6.

JOHN DITKE, 3 years, died Sept. 6.

1. FRANK F. ADAMS, 1 year, died Sept. 7.
 2. IRVING RADOMSKY, 3 years, died Sept. 7.
 3. FRANCE FIDELMAN, 3 1/2 years, died Sept. 7.
 4. JOHN LOUIS, 1 year, died Sept. 8.
 5. JOHN WEIDENBAUM, 4 years, died Sept. 12.
 6. JOSE LOPEZ, 1 year, died Sept. 13.
 7. JOSE MANDELSON, 3 years, died Sept. 13.
 8. JOSE MANDELSON, 8 years, died Sept. 13.
 These deaths were from gastro enteritis, apt. Marianne Radomsky, who had administered Seguin's says the deaths were typically from cholera.
 The students were transferred to swimming pool and taken to hospital to be isolated and sick with cholera:
 1. LEONARD, six years.
 2. JOE HARRIS, 2 years; died.
 3. MANUEL, seven years.
 4. JOHN, six years.
 All baby, name and age unknown.
 Infant deaths: 11; Sick: 4.